AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENTS.

Work of the Station at Purdue University Reviewed in Its Annual Report.

The fourth annual report of the Agricultural Experimental Station of Purdue University was sent to the Governor yesterday, but owing to his absence from the city it will not be acted upon until his resurn. The report of the station's agent, C. S. Plumb, is given first. Mr. Plumb calls especial attention to the suitability of Indiana us a sugar-beet producing State. Farmers have successfully grown beets under the station supervision, during the past year, covering the entire northern half of the State, and in some southern portions. The director believes that sugar may be profitably made from beets cultivated in Indiana. The untiring eftorts of the agriculturist to bring about greater yields of wheat by the application of nitrogenous fertilizers have brought pleasing returns. The constant duplication from year to year of experiments on the influence of plant food, tillage, crop-ping, etc., is the most satisfactory method of field work.

In the botanical department three plant diseases of importance are being investigated. They are: Grain smut (especially wheat and oats), a bacterial disease of the sugar beet and earnation diseases. In the veterinary department especial investigations are in progress concerning lumpy jaw of cattle. A considerable portion of the experimental work in the various departments will be presented to the public in bulletin form during the present year.

The mailing system of the experimental station has been revised, and is now operated upon an entirely different plan. There are 5,800 names and addresses upon this list, to which the publications of the station are sent as they appear. Four bulletins were issued during 1891, relating to the experiments and diseases above noted-As there is enough suitable material for publication during this year the director ammends the assuing of six bulletins.

An acknowledgement is made of the gifts of seeds, agricultural implements and samples of grain sent to the station during the year, and of the various publications which are sent gratuitously, sixty in num-The individual reports of the agricultur-

The report of the secretary of the board of trustees shows that the government appropriation of $15,000 has been spent, and that the balance unexpended June 30, 1890, was $413.02, and the receipts from the sale of farm products was $2,311.03.

CORONER "ROASTED" BROWN

Marion County Medical Society Falls Upon Dr. Manker All in a Heap.

It Expresses Its Confidence in Dr. Wishard and Severely Criticises the Verdict in the Case of Lang.

The Marion County Medical Society held the largest meeting in its history last night in the City Council chamber. The interest was the subject of "Anæsthesia," treated by Dr. W. N. Wishard, who was recently censured by Coroner Manker for an unsuccessful administration of ether. Lang, the clinic patient, was about to be the subject of a compulsory surgical operation, but died before an incision was made, from the effects of the drug. In his paper Dr. Wishard reviewed the pathology of the case and the circumstances leading to the patient coming to this city to be treated. He had made, he said, a careful and close examination of the man's physical condition, and had also had Dr. Kerns, of Kokomo, to examine him. Neither found the slightest indication of weakness of heart or lungs. During the administration of the ether, Dr. Kerns was noting the pulse of the patient and Dr. Akester was holding the inhaler. At the second application of the inhaler, the quantity of ether administered being very small, the patient's pulse and respiration suddenly and entirely ceased. Efto revive the patient by the usual custom of lowering the head, but all attempts at artificial respiration were without avail. Dr. Wishard then reviewed the medical authorities at length, and gave the results of the autopsy. The heart was shown to be perfectly sound, the lungs but slightly imperfect and the kidneys somewhat degenerated. The condition of the kidneys could not, however, have been ascertained except by post-mortem examination. A microscopical test was made of the organs by Dr. Hessler and the result the organs by Dr. Hessler and the result was that there was nothing discovered in the patient's condition that would predispose to such a termination. The Doctor said that death must have been due to some idiosyneracy which, as the term indicates, was peculiar to himself and which could not be forseen or foretold.

The paper received earnest and general applause. Dr. Pantzer opened the discussion of it by saying that chloroform narcosis, from which Lang died, is very rare. Dr. Chisolm, a German surgeon, reports that out of twelve thousand cases of the use of chloroform only four were fatal in their terminations. It is due, he said, often to the use of an impure article of the drug. their terminations. It is due, he said, often to the use of ar impure article of the drug, and he insisted in his remarks, over and over again, that the greatest care should be exercised to get a pure quality of chloroform. The use of the drug, he further said, is not altogether forbidden, even where heart troubles are known to exist, as in many cases, no bad results occur. But whatever the percentage of deaths from the use of the drug, it is far less than the percentage of deaths would be from the the percentage of deaths would be from the shock of pain, if compulsory surgical oper-ations were attempted without an anæs-

Dr. Brayton followed briefly, indorsing Dr. Pantzer's remark as to the comparative percentage of deaths with and without the use of anæsthetics. Dr. Eastman said he had used ether in a thousand cases, and without a single serious result. He found it wise and absolutely necessary to watch carefully the administration of the ancarefully the administration of the anesthetic. He found, also, that this required all his attention, with the closest concentration of mind. He believed Dr. Wishard exercised the fullest care, he said, and that there is no reason to criticise him. As to censure for allowing a medical student to administer the ether, he said, it is entirely a matter of common sense. An inhaler may be instructions, than in the hands of many old medical student, who is careful and heeds instructions, than in the hands of many old practitioners. The speaker said it is the duty of the society to uphold Dr. Wishard. No one knows how soon death may cover his own professional pride.

Remarks were made also in similar vein by Dr. Cook, Dr. Woollen, Dr. Bryson, Dr. Kimberlin, and others. Dr. Stone said in thousands of operations, which he had seen on the battle-field, not one death occurred from the use of chloroform. He attributed the fact to the better and hardier physical condition of the soldiers, due to out-door life. Dr. Dinson then offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Marion County Medical Society declares its entire confidence in Dr. W. N. Wishard as a surgeon of skill, ability and care, and hereby expresses its sympathy with him in the unfortunate result attending the administration of an anæsthetic under his direction to a patient in this city, on Jan. 18, 1892, at St. Vincent's Hospital. Also,

Resolved, That no criticism can justly be made of the manner in which the anæsthetic was used, and that the same result might, have occurred in and that the same result might have occurred in the hands of any surgeon, even when the tech-nique of the administration of the anæsthetic was perfect, as was the case in this instance. .The resolutions were unanimously

Dr. J. O. Stilson next obtained the floor, and said he had some resolutions to offer. He wanted first to say he was sorry to have to take a stand against a professional and political friend, but the circumstances, in full justice to another member of the society and to the profession, require that the resolutions be offered, and, as he thought, should be adopted. They read as

Resolved, That the Marion County Medical Society views with alarm and regret the course of the coroner of this county in sitting as judge in a case involving the reputation of a surgeon with whom he was known to be at personal en-

Resolved, That it would have been more in ac-cordance with a proper regard for the ends of jus-tice and ordinary fairness if the coroner had selected some disinterested and unprejudiced person to conduct this investigation, which could easily have been done; also, Resolved, That such a course as was pursue in this case cannot be excused on the ground that it was a judicial action, but that it is calculated to do an injustice to an innocent man, to bring disrespect upon the office of coroner, and to lessen public confidence in official findings in These, too, were about to be adopted unanimously, when a second reading of them was called for. Dr. Ferguson then opposed their present adoption for the reason that Dr. Manker was not present to defend himself. This started a loquacious and somewhat heated debate, in which it was brought out emphatically that Dr. Manker had been duly notified that the subject of Lang's death was to be discussed. Dr. Ferguson's plea for another chance for Dr. Manker succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the waste of the subject of the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the waste of the side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number to his side and the succeeded in winning over a number of the succeeded in which will not not not necessarily a number of the succeeded in which will not necessarily a number of th number to his side, and the motion to table the resolutions was only lost by a vote of 23 to 18. Dr. Pantzer voted with the thirteen. The vote on the original resolutions was unanimous, with the exception of Dr. Ferguson, who voted in the negative. The society then adjourned.

"JEFF" TELLS ANOTHER STORY. How He Got Away with a Couple of Bodies in the Hands of the Police.

It is a peculiar fact that hangmen, bodysnatchers and demonstrators of anatomy are usually a very jocular kind of people, and see nothing gruesome in their respective professions. What makes other folks shudder makes them laugh. Mr. Jefferson Garrigus, although he has, of course, quit the business of body-snatching some two or three years ago, still retains the characteristic of his kind, and has an amazing lot of jocularity stored away under his loose-fitting clothes. Jeft. "blew" into the Journal office yesterday afternoon to correct some statements, and while he unwittingly sat for a picture, he grew loquacious and told one of his past experiences. Of course, this didn't occur in Indiana polis-oh no!

"Me and my pardner went out one night," said Jeff. "and got two bodies. Our wagon was too small to accommodate the 'stiffs' and us, too, so I walked along, about a square behind. We hadn't gone far when I saw the coppers nab my pardner and the stiffs. They had him dead to rights, because he had the bodies in the wagon. The coppers took my pardner and the wagon to the police station, and I followed along behind. It was pretty cold that night, so when they got there, they all went inside, leaving no one to watch the stiffs. I sneaked up, cut the strap with my knife, and getting into the wagon drove to the medical college and sold the

MORE LIGHT FOR THE BOARD

City Attorney Tells of the Steps Necessary in Building Big and Little Sewers

Assessment Machinery Explained - Street Sprinkling Will Cost About $125,000-Case of Democratic Love.

The Board of Public Works is in doubt about every line in the charter. The other day it mailed a communication to the city attorney asking him for an opinion concerning the adoption of sewer resolutions and the assessments for their construction. Mr. Bailey says that a careful analysis of the charter in the matter of the construction and enlargement of sewers discloses some slight inconsistencies and possible ambiguities which will require the Board of Public Works to proceed, in its practical application of the law, or the line which must be regarded as most clearly in conformity with the legislative intent. Section 85 requires that all resolutions for local main sewers shall be passed, notice thereof published, remonstrances heard, the original action of the board confirmed or rescinded, as provided for in the laying out of streets. In so far as the above reference has to do with the advertisement for bids and the letting of contracts, it is defective, since under the provisions relating to the condemnation of property, etc., the subject of bids and contracts is not discussed at all. Section 61, however, makes general provision covering the matter of advertising for bids and the letting of contracts, and doubtless cures the defect here pointed

After a local sewer has been ordered, notice published and remonstrances heard, if the order be confirmed, the board should next advertise for bids under Section 61. As to local sewers, the provisions of Section 78, requiring a reference to the Common Conneil on the written remonstrance of two-thirds of the abutting property-holders or those prescribed in sections from 64 to 69, nclusive, do not apply.

In the construction or enlargement of nain sewers the steps which should be main sewers the steps which should be taken are as follows: The passage of a resolution, etc., under Section 68; the preparation of a list or roll, etc., under Section 64; the assessment of benefits, service of notice on residents and by publication on non-residents, in which a day for hearing remonstrances shall be fixed, as in Section 65, infants and those under guardian to be served as in Section 66.

Persons aggrieved at the board's action served as in Section 66.

Persons aggrieved at the board's action may appeal to the Circuit Court within twenty days after the board's decision. It should be observed at this point that abutting property-holders cannot appeal from that portion of their assessment which represents their pro rata portion of the cost of a local sewer, but only from the portion assessed against them as special benefits derived from the advantage of the work when considered as a large sewer or drain. Section 70, governing the assessment of benefits in general, gives sixty days from the filing of the duplicate of the assessment roll with the city treasurer for the payment of benefits, at which time they become due, and if not paid are collectible, with interest, as upon foreclosure. Section 33, however, says that sewer assessments, whether for main or local sewers, shall be paid under the provisions governing street improvement assessments, including the ten annual installment plans. These provisions require that all persons who desire to avail themselves of the advantage of paying their asseessments by installments. paying their asseessments by installments, shall sign a waiver within thirty days from the allowance of the final estimate, and if not paid at that time their assessments, with interest, may be collected by suit. It is clear, therefore, that all sewer assessments become due and payable within thirty days after the allowance of the final estimate for the work performed unless a waiver has been signed and filed before the expiration of that period. In instances where persons assessed for their share of that part of the cost of a main sewer that is in excess of the amount which would be required to build a local sewer along the same line have appealed they must be treated merely as declining to sign a waiver, same line have appealed they must be treated merely as declining to sign a waiver, and they are not entitled to pay whatever may be finally adjudged against them upon the installment plan, but such sum, with interest from the beginning, is a lien upon their property, and may be collected in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Mr. Bailey also therewith inclosed blank forms for the ordering of a local sewer and for the construction and enlargement of a main sewer. He called the board's attention to the fact that in ordering a main sewer it will be necessary for them to incorporate into the specifications for such work the relative cost of a local sewer along the same line, in order to enable such computations as will be required to fix the proper assessments against abutting property-holders. Of course this must be arbitrarily done, but, inasmuch as an adequate local sewer, be it six inches or two feet in diameter, bears a fixed relation to the amount to be actually built, the fixing of this relation becomes a matter of almost absolute accuracy and is so eminently just as to preclude all complaint. It would probably be in excess of the board's authority to fix the cost of a local sewer in dollars and cents, which would thus—to the extent of the cost of a local sewer. dollars and cents, which would thus-to the extent of the cost of a local sewereliminate from the bid for the main sewer the quality of competition such as required

THE LATE WILLIAM D. KERR.

His Sudden Death Much Mourned at the Court-House-Half-Brother of Senator McDonald.

The death of William D. Kerr, clerk of Judge Harper's court, noted in yesterday morning's Journal, caused a profound feeling of sorrow yesterday about the courthouse. Mr. Kerr was a favorite with all. Clerk Wilson said of him, when speaking of his death: "He was a gentleman throughout, and a man of scholarly and refined instincts. He was thoroughly informed about the duties of clerk, and was very competent and reliable in every way. I esteemed him highly for his kindness of heart. His generosity was developed to a fault. Sena-tor McDonald, his half brother, held a high regard for him, not only as a brother, but

The deceased was a native of the State, being born sixty-four years ago. He was a half brother of the late Senator Joseph E. McDonald. He was for eight years clerk of Fountain county. He was a deputy clerk under Austin H. Brown and was reappointed by John E. Sullivan and John R. Wilson. After his service with Mr. Brown he became editor of the Fountain County Democrat. He was twice married, his first wife being a Crawfordsville lady. She lived but a few years after her marriage. The second wife was a school-teacher of Warren township, and she, too, preceded her husband in death, some years since.

No children were born to these marriages, but an adopted daughter, reared by Mr. Kerr, is living in this city.

The funeral will occur this morning, at the home of the deceased, at the Enterprise Hotel. The pall-bearers will be John R. Wilson, Austin H. Brown, R. M. Smock, George Buskirk, H. C. G. Bals and James C. Harper. The interment will occur at Covington, Ind., where his wife is buried.

President Lilly, of the Commercial Club, will give a dinner at the New Denison House on Thursday evening of next week in honor of the gentlemen who went to Washington to secure the Democratic national convention for Indianapolis, and also in compliment to a few of the official repsentatives in the State of the G. A. R., including past department commanders, who will probably be prominently identified with the movement to have the national encampment of 1893 held in Indianapolis, the two undertakings having from the first been practically combined in one move-ment. Colonel Lilly, as the head of the or-ganization back of these two movements, highly appreciates the work that has been done and desires to bring together socially the gentlemen most prominently identified with the work. Between thirty-five and forty invitations for the occasion have been issued.
